

What is LED Light Therapy?

How can pain relief be so easy,
and also so good for you?

The net result of light therapy is a cascade of beneficial chemical reactions throughout damaged nerve cells that stimulate healing. This response can be directly attributed to increased blood flow. Enhanced localized blood flow improves tissue oxygenation.

THERAPY

How it works

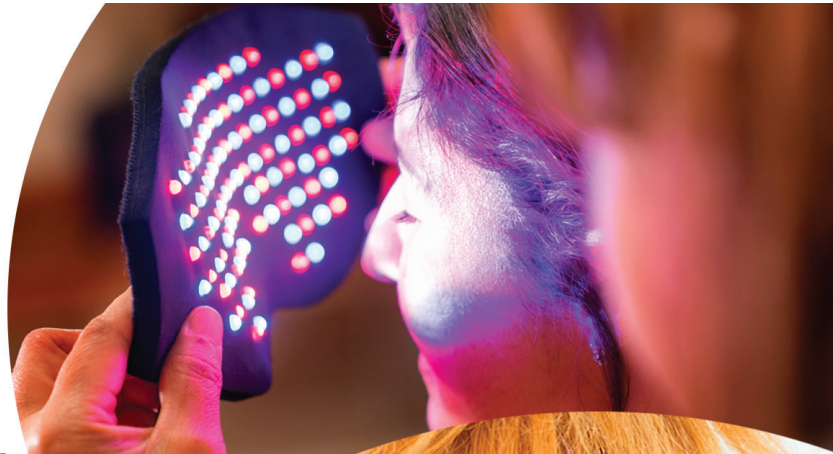

Inlight Therapy systems provide low-level light therapy (LLLT), or polychromatic light therapy (PLT), when multiple wavelengths are emitted simultaneously.

- 20-minute session
- Increase blood circulation
- Reduce pain
- Decrease inflammation
- Trigger nitric oxide release
- Trigger ATP production
- Rejuvenate body tissues
- Accelerate natural healing processes

Pain Relief and Wellbeing

Many people with symptoms of pain or impaired circulation associated with the following conditions experience positive results from using PLT:

- Non-invasive & all-natural
- Activate restorative healing processes at the cellular level
- Improve energy
- General aches and pains: shoulder, neck, back, hands, wrist, leg, knee, ankle, muscles, etc.
- Inflammation and swelling: arthritic joints, tennis elbow, and carpal tunnel injuries
- Bone fractures
- Burns, bruises, & wounds
- Cold hands and feet
- Skin conditions
- Neuropathy
- Brain function
- Speeds-up exercise recovery time
- Enhances athletic performance
- Mood disorders
- Reduce stress
